Welcome to Marie-Galante

Land of traditions, land of history, natural and cultural heritage

Located about fifty kilometers from Pointe-à-Pitre, in a peaceful and green environment, Marie-Galante is the ideal setting for a relaxing stay... With a population of approximately 10,565 inhabitants, the island extends over 158 km<sup>2</sup> and is administratively made up of three municipalities: GRAND-BOURG - CAPESTERRE and SAINT-LOUIS.

You will be able to discover LA GRANDE GALETTE in a different way and visit new places by taking the unusual footpaths inland.

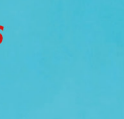

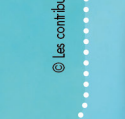

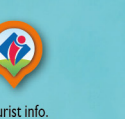

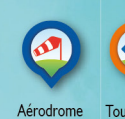

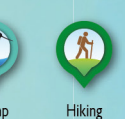

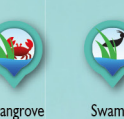

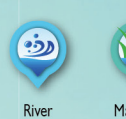

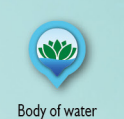

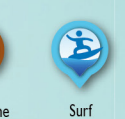

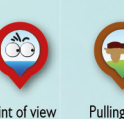

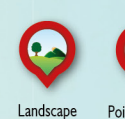

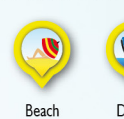

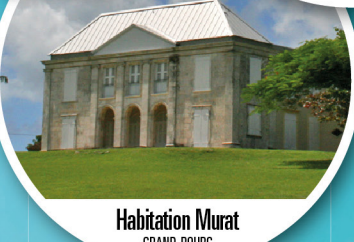

Island of sugar cane, there is the famous cane juice; this juice concentrated for a long time in battery syrup, named after the battery of vats which were once used to concentrate it.

You can discover the manufacturing secrets of our rums, grading 59 degrees and liqueurs by visiting our distilleries, forget the stress of everyday life by tasting our culinary specialties (Bébélé, chodaj, seafood, etc.) and let yourself be lulled by the trade winds on one of our wonderful beaches. You will also be able to enjoy our splendid natural spaces by tasting the pleasure of an excursion in an ox cart, or even to experience unique and warm moments in contact with our welcoming population.

Our tourist map lists the must-see attractions: Museums, hikes, distilleries, syrup factories, cassaveries, honey factories, viewpoints. It was made for you, it will open the doors to the treasures of the island. You will be won over forever... Marie-Galante, so true!

We are confident that you will make the best use of it.

Good discovery and good stay in Marie-Galante!

Discovering Marie-Galante

The essentials

Le château Murat
This building is one of the finest examples of civil architecture in the West Indies. It is the main residence of a former sugar estate founded in the 17th century and then gradually expanded to include 180 hectares and nearly 300 slaves in the 19th century. In addition to the mansion, several vestiges of this property now preserved testify to its agricultural past: a windmill, an animal mill, a sugar refinery... Murat is today the seat of the Marie-Galante ecomuseum.

L'église Notre-Dame de Marie-Galante
The current church of Grand-Bourg, built in 1846, occupies the same location as all those that preceded it since the beginning of colonization. This place of worship has indeed had to suffer many disasters: fire (1838), earthquake (1843), cyclones (1865 and 1928). This neo-classical style building has been listed as a historic monument since 1979.

Gueule Grand Gouffre
It is a natural site in the extreme north of the island: a natural arch of great beauty dug into the rock by the ocean, visible from the top of a chasm 30 meters in circumference born from a closed depression (sinkhole). Warning: scrupulously respect the safety barriers..

La mare au punch
This pond is located on the former estate of the Pirogue dwelling, one of the oldest on the island. It is said that this pond would bear this name since the news of the abolition of slavery in 1848, the slaves had celebrated their liberation by pouring into it the stocks of sugar and rums of the property, thus achieving a gigantic punch..

L'habitation Roussel-Trianon
The remains of this sugar estate form an exceptional ensemble whose interest has earned it the status of historical monuments. There is a windmill, a large stable, a mule park, the buildings of the central factory, a chimney, and an underground water cistern. Like Château Murat, this site is now the property of the Departmental Council.

Les moulins à vent
Characteristic of the landscapes of Marie-Galante, the mills bear witness to the intense sugar-producing activity of Marie-Galante from the 18th century. Those that remain visible in the countryside were built of stone, but could also be of wood. 6 to 9 meters high, they were used to crush the cane to extract the juice intended to make sugar or to be distilled into rum. The wings of the last mills stopped turning in the early 1940s.
